Port Beauchere Cannery Burns

The Port Beauchere cannery of the Kuui Island Packing Company caught fire and burned to the ground yesterday morning according to information brought in this morning by H. A. Clark.

The fire was discovered about seven thirty yesterday morning when the whole of the upper loft of the warehouse which was used to store the nets was found to be a fire. Everything possible was done to try to stop the fire but it had gained such a head way and burning in the heavy tared nets that it was impossible to stop the flames and the attention of those present was put to saving the bunk house and other buildings of the company. The fire lasted about two hours and burned the cannery and the large warehouse completely to the ground. The loss is estimated at about eighty thousand dollars.

The Port Beauchere cannery is practically a new one being built three seasons ago. There is only one line of machinery working but the cannery was so that another could be added at any other time. Port Beauchere is located on Kuui Island about sixty two miles from Wrangell.

E. Erickson was killed by the shifting of a cargo on the steamer Seward during a storm on Prince William Sound the 3rd inst.

Engines Arrive For Power Co.

The new engines for the Wrangell Electric Light and Power Co. arrived up on the Northwestern last Monday morning and are being installed as fast as possible. The engines are Fairbanks-Morse engines registered at 25 horse power each, but will develop 40 H. P. if needed. The big engines weigh about four tons each and are being set on big cement bases in the new engine room recently built adjoining the old power house.

The company are looking for their new dynamo on the Humboldt and everything will be in readiness to install it as soon as it arrives.

Manager Palmer stated that he expects to have the new plant in operation within the next two or three weeks, and then the company will be in shape to give Wrangell the best light service that she has ever had. The company certainly deserve much credit for the fine plant they are installing under the existing conditions as no town in Alaska of our size will have a plant anywhere near the size of ours. In speaking of day power Mr. Palmer stated that he did not think that it would be possible for the company to start the day system before next spring at the least but that they would be well prepared by that time to handle all the business along the power system that can be had.

Harry Johnson, Well Known Alaskan, Lost on Zarembo Is.

Lost somewhere back of St. Johns Harbor on Zarembo Island is Harry Johnson or most likely his remains for it is believed that by this time he has died from exposure if not from an accident.

Monday, Oct. 12, Harry Johnson and Otto Faller left Wrangell on the gas boat O-K, belonging to Faller, bound for a weeks hunt at Duncan Canal, but when they got to Zarembo about three miles the other side of St. Johns Harbor the weather was so bad that they could not cross on the boat so laid there from Monday night until Wednesday morning for calmer weather. Wednesday morning the men got up early and as the tide was out thought they would see if they could get some meat while waiting for the tide to float the boat so they could go across, and between seven and eight o'clock they started in the woods, Johnson taking the right hand side of a small creek and Faller crossing over and going up the left hand side. After being in the woods for a couple of hours Faller returned to the beach and having a couple of ducks went aboard and started dinner thinking that Johnson would return shortly and they would have dinner and go on to Duncan Canal, but when dinner time came Johnson did not show up and after waiting until about two o'clock Faller became uneasy and getting his gun started back in the woods over the ground traveled by Johnson and after going back for some distance started firing shots but received no answer and after hunting until nearly dark came back to the boat and went along the shore hoping to see a light or signal of some kind but did not see a thing so he came back and anchored the boat in the old place. The next morning he started the search again but by nightfall his labors were still unrewarded although he had signaled a passing boat and had the help of two men to aid in the search. Friday night he went down to St. Johns Harbor where the gas boat U and I was anchored and got their help in the search and Friday morning six men were in the woods looking for the lost man but not a trace of him could be found, so Friday afternoon Faller started for Wrangell and reported the lost man to the Marshals office.

Saturday morning the Clatawa left for the scene with eleven men on board, most of the men were put ashore near the scene and the rest made the trip clear around the island but not a sign of the missing man could be found so Sunday night the Clatawa returned giving up the search, and Monday again the gas boats Helen, Leona and O-K left to take up the search with thirteen men aboard and when they arrived at the scene they found that the Mildred had arrived with nine men from Petersburg to aid in the search, making a total of twenty-two men who went into the woods and hunted for two days traveling over every imaginable spot on the island in that vicinity but not a trace of the missing man could be found, so the boats returned home giving the man up for lost for good.

It is felt here that the man is dead as it would be a miracle for any man to live for a week in the woods in the cold rain that has been falling for the past week, and according to the statement of Faller, Johnson went into the woods without even an oil coat of any kind on.

Harry Johnson was a man about 50 years of age and has worked for the Santa Anna cannery as a fisherman for several seasons although making Petersburg his home until this summer when he brought his wife to Wrangell and has lived in one of the Patenaude houses near the school house.

The body of John Hyland who passed away at Telegraph as announced in last weeks issue of the Sentinel, arrived down on the Winifred last Thursday evening. The Winifred having met the party on the upper river and had turned back to bring the body to Wrangell. The body was prepared here and shipped south on the Princess Sophia Friday evening, Mrs. Hyland going south on the same boat. The body will be laid to rest in San Francisco.

Court House To Be Remodded

Deputy U. S. Marshal Wallace has out a call for bids for the repairing and remodding of the Court House and when interviewed on the subject stated that he has received orders from Marshal Bishop at Juneau to get same with the view of putting the old court house in good shape.

If the contracts are let for the work the building will be raised about twelve inches and the old fire places torn out and new windows and doors placed in the entire building.

The repairing and remodding of the court house is something that should be done as the building as it now stands is a detriment to the officials and the town and Marshal Wallace deserves credit for the speedy way in which he is going at the work of improving the government holdings under his supervision.

The remodding of the old Court House will be a great improvement but a much better one would be the building of an entirely new one, as the buildings are over forty years of age and have outlived their usefulness and with little additional expense above repairing the old building, the Marshal's office could build a new building housing the court room and jail that would be in comparison with what Wrangell should have. Let us hope that the Marshal's office will see fit to give Wrangell a new building instead of repairing the old one.

Candidates Here Of Non-Partisan Ticket

The candidates for election on the non-partisan party arrived in Wrangell this morning on the Mariposa and will spend the next two days here getting acquainted with the voters and the men they will represent when elected to the next Alaska Legislature. On account of having to get back to Juneau on business it was impossible for Mr. Heid to spend more than the time the boat was in port here. The candidates here are M. J. O'Conner, for Senator, and A. G. Shoup, J. R. Heckman and Wm. Britt for Representatives.

Last Tuesday the Seaketch arrived in port with the following Ketchikan sportsmen on board bound for the flats for a few days shooting, Fremont King, Harvey Stackpole, Dale Hunt, Frank Burkhardt and M. J. Bugge.

The Wrangell Photoshow have some great features coming, so watch for "Uncle Toms Cabin" in 3 marvelous reels, this is one of the biggest treats in moving pictures. And "Trapped in the Castle of Mystery" a 3 reel Watier Feature a positive thriller.

Hon. James Wickersham

Progressive Democratic candidate for Delegate from Alaska.

Once again the time is at hand in Alaska for everyone to begin to turn their thoughts towards the winter months. The days are getting shorter and Wrangell has seen her first frost of the season. The snow is beginning to shift farther down the sides of the mountains toward the waterline, and the more restless spirits are beginning to think of the well lighted cities of the states as their haven for the long winter days.

Alaskans as a whole are possessed with the spirit of the wanderer, had it not been for that spirit Alaska would still be a desolate waste. There are two seasons of the year that bring out the wandering spirit in nearly every person, they are the first days of spring and the first days of fall. It is the same the world over.
People would not leave their old homes was it not for the fact that the spring sunshine tempted them to seek fresh fields, and the gripping masses of mankind are always seeking greener and brighter fields. The wanderlust of our ancestors always calls strongest in the spring and early winter, and those that leave Alaska at this time do so with the convictions that other parts of the world are brighter and greener. But those of us who stay behind let us be content with the knowledge that when the warm days of spring come again the same old fever will return and the leaving wanderers will come back again.

At the beginning of the campaign the Bunnell press was willing to grant that Wickersham deserved a little credit for some of his work in behalf of Alaska, but they now deny that he has ever secured anything good.—Dispatch.

This was entirely an oversight on our part and for no reason whatever. The Club wishes to thank all those who helped to make the dance and card party a success and especially to Mr. and Mrs. J. G. ### S. E. Alaska Fisherman's Association HEADQUARTERS

September 23rd, 1914

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am asking the people of Alaska to elect me as a representative in their next Legislature for the following reasons:

1 It is the desire of the majority of the women of Alaska that all women may be granted the privilege, and realize the importance, of their assuming their share of every responsibility and every public duty, and have the opportunity of working with men for the advancement and good of our country; for only by mutual discussion, consideration and co-operation can the wisest conclusions be reached in all matters pertaining to the welfare, of men, women and children, and the best way to accomplish this is for the men and women of Alaska to elect women as part of their representatives in the Alaska Legislature.

2 That I may more effectively continue the work I have been doing for the past year and a half as Secretary of the Ketchikan Division of the S. E. Alaska Fisherman's Association. My husband, who is Secretary-Treasurer of the whole Association, has been a fisherman and resident of Alaska for many years, and always an earnest leader and worker for the fishermen to obtain their rights. He was also Secretary of their former union, Alaska Local No. 2, United Fishermen of the Pacific. As his subordinate official and that of our Executive Board, and as a member of our Association, whose aim is to advance the interests of all the fishermen of Alaska, and of all business dependent upon the prosperity of the fishermen, my work in the Alaska Legislature (if elected) will be faithful, intelligent and energetic.

3 My influence and votes in the Alaska Legislature (if elected) for the workers of Alaska in all other occupations will be to maintain and defend their rights and to secure them a square deal in every thing.

4 My attitude towards capital is to compel it to grant labor its fair and just share of what it earns and to welcome and support its investment in legitimate enterprises in our country.

Will you favor me with your support?

I announce myself as an independent candidate for the Alaska House of Representatives on the following platform:

- 1 Complete enfranchisement of women.
- 2 Abolishment of fishtraps in Alaskan waters.
- 3 Legislation obliging a husband to support his wife and children.
- 4 The passage of a law requiring a residence of six months for non-resident fishermen to qualify for the right to fish in Alaskan waters.

5 Legislation making S. E. Alaska a separate territory.

6 A law forbidding Government employees to engage in other business under penalty of removal, and that all be put on salaries.

7 A law providing for the Australian ballot system in Alaska.

MARY A. C. GIBSON

(Mrs. Nels. Gibson)

A mild case of scarlet fever has developed at Whitehorse. A strict quarantine has been established and the inhabitants have no fear of a spread of the disease.

The Arctic Brotherhood at Ketchikan will celebrate Alaska Day by giving a big dance on Oct. 19th.

A drink crazed citizen of Valdez chased a saloon keeper for seven blocks through the heart of the city.

The Grand Trunk Pacific railway now operates two trains a week over the line from Prince Rupert East.

Mrs. Lena Morrow Lewis, a socialist leader, has volunteered to instruct the women of Juneau in the art of voting.

Representative J. A. Falconer, of Washington, who wanted to force prohibition on Alaska, is now a dead one, politically.

"The Dream" is the proper place to go when in Ketchikan.

START CAMPAIGNING

Juneau, Oct. 17.—A campaign committee, comprising the candidates on the Non-Partisan ticket, are to visit every voting precinct in the First Division before election day, November 3rd. This trip has been arranged from Non-Partisan Campaign Headquarters at Juneau, with a view of familiarizing the candidates of the Non-Partisan ticket with conditions in the First Division, and to allow the candidates to get in touch with the people whom they will represent, if elected to the Legislature.

The following is a biographical sketch of the candidates on the Non-Partisan ticket:

M. J. O'Connor, candidate for the Senate, was borne in Ireland, where he received a commercial education. He was apprenticed as a lad, and, after receiving a thorough training in the drygoods business, he left his native country for one where conditions were more favorable and opportunities more numerous.

Arriving in San Francisco about 27 years ago, he remained for about a year. Hungering for frontier life, he pushed his way northward to Washington Territory, and secured employment with the Carbon Hill Coal Company as manager of their drygoods department, staying with them eleven years. When the news of the great Klondike strike reached the Puget Sound country in '97, he heard the "Call of the North," and, in partnership with De Vere Utler, he opened up a general store at Dyea, in January 1898. The town lasted about six months, and Mr. O'Connor buying his partner's interest, removed the stock to Douglas where he has since resided.

During the many years of his residence in Douglas, Mr. O'Connor has been ever at the fore-front in all public enterprises, willing to devote both time and money for the public good—generous to a fault; always ready to do his part. An evidence that his character is appreciated in his home town we might state that he is now serving his sixth term as mayor of Douglas.

Arthur G. Shoup was born at Challis, Idaho Territory, November 26, 1880, and came to Alaska in July 1897. He was educated in the common school of Idaho and Alaska, and a graduate of the law class of Washington State University.

Mr. Shoup served as Deputy United States Marshal from 1902 to 1910; was elected a member of the House of Representatives of the First Alaska Territorial Legislature; was chairman of the committee on Judiciary and Federal Relations, and prominent on other committees.

Introduced the following bills which were enacted into laws: Woman's Suffrage; Providing Penalty for Inciting Another to Commit a Crime; Establishment of Juvenile Courts; Vital Statistics; Amendment to Code allowing several charges against the same person for the same act or transaction to be combined in one indictment; Provision for the appointment of commissioners from Alaska for the promotion of uniformity of legislation in the United States; Quarantine Law; Law for the compulsory education of the children of Alaska; Provision for the Incorporation of cities of the second class in Alaska; Prohibiting the casting of saw dust in salmon streams in Alaska; White Slavery Law; Establishment of Pioneer's Home; Public Health; Authority and Direction for Territorial Treasurer to apply for and receive moneys in the United States Treasury due the Territory on account of timber sales in Alaska; served without compensation as superintendent of Alaska Pioneers' Home since its organization.

William Britt was born in Norway, graduating from the University of Christiania with high honors, followed by his employment as instructor in political economy, later specializing in chemistry.

Mr. Britt came to the United States in 1893, locating in Chicago, where he followed his occupation as a druggist until 1898, when he joined the Klondike stampede, locating at Skagway in 1899, where he established the druggist business known as Britt's Pharmacy. Shortly afterward he was elected a member of the first Skagway School Board. He later served as City Councilman, School Treasurer and municipal magistrate.

In 1912 Mr. Britt moved to Juneau, where he established the drug business known as Britt's Pharmacy, retaining the Skagway store, which he still owns. Mr. Britt was elected a member of the Juneau City Council last year, and has several important committee assignments. Governor Strong ordered him a member of the first Alaska Board of Pharmacy, following the creation of the Board by the Alaska Legislature, and Mr. Britt was selected by the other members of the Board as Board President.

John G. Heid arrived in Juneau on April 11, 1885, having previously been engaged in mining in Colorado. Mr. Heid opened up a law office shortly after his arrival, and has been in the active practice of law since that date, and is today the oldest member of the Alaska Bar Association in active practice.

He was married in Juneau in July, 1888, having lived at all times since then in the same dwelling house in Juneau, where three daughters were born, educated, and one married.

Mr. Heid has been continually engaged in mining and developing the mineral resources of Alaska for the past thirty years, and is perhaps more familiar with the mining conditions in Southeastern Alaska than any other man, having been identified with many of the mineral locations which have in later years been developed into producing mines.

John R. Heckman was born in Nova Scotia in 1866; he came to California in 1875, where he was educated in the public schools. In 1886 and '87 he went to Cook's Inlet as a gill net fisherman. In 1889 he went to Loring as a machinist helper, continuing in the capacity of an employ or independent fisherman until a few years later, when Mr. Heckman located in business of general merchandising, later opening another store at Ketchikan.

Mr. Heckman is president of the J. R. Heckman company Mercantile Store at Ketchikan, vice-president of the Miners & Merchant's Bank, Ketchikan, General Manager of the Loring Cannery, and principal owner and financial agent for several of the prominent mining companies in the Prince of Wales mining section.

The doctors at Ketchikan have organized a union.

The grass on Kodiak Island is providing ample feed for livestock.

At Nome, Alfred Parson paid a $50 fine for running a gambling house.

The people of Skagway have about decided to eat their school of whales.

Copper is contraband and the coal is tied up. Prosperity to Alaska seems not to come in chunks.
